The “Parkinson’s Buddy Network” was designed by our Foundation to be an always-on source of connection and solidarity for the community. The web-based platform allows those with PD, their loved ones and care partners to develop meaningful relationships and combat isolation. This fully online social network — currently hosting more than 20,000 users (and counting) from across the globe — offers a lively discussion board, access to resources and upcoming events, and the ability to search for “buddies” and send private messages. The Buddy Network also hosts a robust offering of smaller interest groups to connect various categories of individuals, such as care partners with other care partners; the newly diagnosed with people who have been living with the disease longer; or those interested in key topics like diet and exercise.

Benefits of Support: Through the Parkinson’s Buddy Network’s “Resources Hub” and in dedicated Chat Forums, we distribute your brand’s health and wellness resources and information related to treatment options and research opportunities, while encouraging a dialogue around key topics.

EDUCATING THE COMMUNITY TO LIVE WELL WITH PARKINSON'S

Evergreen and Spotlight Education on Parkinson's Disease

Commitment Range:

$25,000 – $100,000 per resource

Consumer Insights

Every individual and family impacted by Parkinson's needs trusted sources of information to help them navigate their journey with the disease. By speaking directly to people with PD and their care partners, MJFF is changing the dialogue around symptoms, therapeutic options, lifestyle resources and the value of research participation. To help combat virtual information fatigue, our resources are curated to meet patients and families where they are on that journey so that the information is seen, heard and retained.

MJFF's first-in-class educational content is thoughtfully created and strategically promoted to unique audience segments defined by their relationship to Parkinson's and their readiness to participate in research. Our Parkinson's audience includes people with newly diagnosed, mid-stage and advancing PD. We also consider Parkinson's-adjacent populations such as care partners and people at heightened risk for PD, such as those with a family connection or genetic factor. We regularly reach out to a general population of aging individuals who may be interested in overall health and wellness and in participating in studies to protect brain health.

MJFF's evergreen education is composed of:

- + Third Thursdays Webinar series (averaging 47,000+ views each year)
- + Ask the MD video and blog series (averaging 168,000 video views each year)
- + Parkinson's Podcast (averaging 132,000 downloads each year)

The Foundation also regularly publishes "spotlights" on specific Parkinson's-related topics, establishing a comprehensive user journey that guides community members through education on one topic and empowers them to be savvy healthcare consumers.

In 2025, MJFF will deliver education to particular subgroups within our community focused on (but not limited to) the following themes: 1) symptom spotlights and the value of research participation; 2) genetics, sleep behaviors and other risk factors for PD; and 3) brain health and healthy aging.

Benefits of Support: Companies whose products, services, corporate mission or social impact priorities align with our community will benefit from leveraging MJFF’s promotional efforts to distribute related content and calls to action to our audiences. Additionally, the interactive nature of our platforms allows for feedback regarding our community’s interests, challenges and perspectives. Multiple programs and sponsorship levels afford opportunities for visibility for your company and its products, programs or services to our audience. Levels range from an entry point for groups exploring early investments in education to opportunities for MJFF to link to your branded product and program webpages.

PPMI: The Study that’s Changing Everything

Commitment Range:
In-Kind – $100,000+

Brand Exposure

Digital Recognition

The Parkinson’s Progression Markers Initiative (PPMI) is changing how patients, families, doctors and scientists think about brain disease. The Michael J. Fox Foundation launched PPMI in 2010 to better understand Parkinson’s and advance new treatments. Since then, the study has changed how research is done and what scientists know about the brain. It is a cornerstone of our understanding of disease and has heavily influenced clinical trial design.

PPMI follows people — with and without Parkinson’s — over time to learn more about how disease starts and changes. That information may lead to insights and tools that can help better diagnose, treat and even prevent brain disease. More than 40,000 volunteers share data online. More than 2,500 have tests and share biological samples at one of 50 participating medical centers in 12 countries. The study shares its data set — the most robust in Parkinson’s research — with scientists to speed breakthroughs.

This landmark initiative is only possible through partnerships. Field leaders and more than 40 funding partners have helped shape PPMI. Now PPMI is recruiting more volunteers who can help advance us closer to better treatments and prevention.

Benefits of Support: MJFF is actively working with corporate partners through financial, in-kind and promotional partnerships to drive awareness of this critical study and, importantly, to give back to those volunteers who are offering so much of themselves and their time to this important study. Partners join the PPMI Partner Advisory Board, regularly receiving updates and sharing input on the study direction.

Promoting Diversity, Equity and Inclusivity in Parkinson's Research and Care

Historically, most PD research has not been fully representative of all people who live with the disease. As a result, scientists have an incomplete picture of who has the disease and how it affects their ability to access care. It is critical to our mission that those participating in and conducting Parkinson's research represent the diversity of the larger Parkinson's community. Our holistic approach includes partnering with a wide range of global stakeholders, including people with PD and their caregivers, specialists and other allied healthcare providers, and researchers and companies developing innovative therapies and solutions for those living with PD. We recognize that a culture of collaboration is critical to removing barriers. MJFF is working to address these gaps by:

- + Connecting diverse communities to educational resources on PD and brain health
- + Improving access to care by building a clinician and researcher workforce reflective of the diversity of the PD community
- + Identifying barriers and implementing solutions in research participation of historically underrepresented populations

As we grow our portfolio of initiatives aimed at engaging underrepresented populations in research and increasing access to care, we want to hear from you on your diversity, equity and inclusivity (DEI) priorities.

Benefits of Support: By partnering with MJFF on meaningful, sustained initiatives that generate lasting change, you can reaffirm your company's commitment to DEI and increase your stakeholders' awareness of your actions — those you are already taking and those you intend to take to ensure DEI in Parkinson's research and care.

Please reach out to researchpartnerships@michaeljfox.org to explore ways to work together.

“This disease does not discriminate, and that’s why representation matters. The Foundation is a community of people coming together and welcoming all — and it’s meant so much to me.”
